

THE BLUE SKIES

Description

As soon as I wake up, the first thing I want to take a look at is the bright blue sky. The radiant blue sky interspersed by cushiony white clouds. Floating around in the morning warm sunlight, they have all the right elements to make you feel good.

Receiving the warmness for a few minutes, I felt like a receptacle of all healthy emotions.

On some days I find the day downcast, dark clouds hanging low and no sunlight to push me up. Something similar to our moods; which we have to endure at some unfavorable bargains. But have patience; after an hour or so the clouds disperse, and I can see the sharp sunrays running towards me. And so do my feelings. There I can see my mind jumping at will again.

Whenever camera in my hand looking and framing the bright blue skies, it looks like I receive a gospel. It appears like the earth is supporting me, skies smiling at me, the waving winds comforting me, the far away water bodies encouraging me.

It's at that tick I get a flash that the universe is standing behind me and patting on back cheerfully, "Hey you get going, don't ever look back. I wish you good luck". That is the inspiration I gain when I stand and breathe and feel the energy inside my body surrounded by nature. That is when I look at the blue skies.

Category

- 1. Uncategorized

Date Created

2018/08/09

Author

eswarnadipalli